practical advice ranges from practical tips to psychological tricks, and provides valuable insight even for "professional" event goers. For example, if you are wondering why you seldomly get invited to house parties, try this one first: If someone in your circle is holding a lot of house parties, simply invite him or her to your own parties. He will invite you back. If you are a friendly and entertaining guest other hosts present will also start inviting you. The book talks a lot about the mindset required if you are serious about a more exciting social calendar. You really don't have to crash the parties - although the book covers this topic as well - simply follow the tips in this book on how to get on VIP lists of PR firms and you can bypass the red ribbon without Angst.

When was the last time you were invited to a party? A cocktail reception? A store opening? Do you remember or it has been such a long time since then that you have already forgotten? Have you ever wondered why some people get always invited and some others don't? Do you wish to get invited more often? With witty and engaging chapters, tips and plenty of resources, GET INVITED discusses the reasons of parties, invitations and guest lists and proves that you don't need a posh lifestyle or being "sociable" to be on the guest list. GET INVITED, DON'T CRASH it is an entertaining guide for those who want to be on the guest list more often.

About the Author As a citizen of the world, Thei Zervaki lived in major cities including Brussels and London. She has worked in the language and translation industries and has been invited to numerous parties and events. Her GET INVITED BOOK is a resourceful and entertaining guide with tips and techniques on how to be on the guest list instead of being left out. Thei shares her party and culinary adventures on her blog www.fullybooked.biz, is a regular food contributor for Southern Hospitality Magazines and wets appetites with cultural tastes for her JUST TRY IT column. She satisfies her curiosity as a "headhunter" for the trendiest and weirdest foods in gourmet stores and street markets, loves reading food memories and enjoys fully a glass of Riesling alone or with good company in hot and humid New York nights.
